Post-War readjustments continued, including military service obligations which related to the recent war and new threats of the "Cold War." It was in this year that Robert P. Hooper, LL.D., who had been President of the Board of Trustees for the past decade, changed title to Chairman of the Board, with creation of a new post in the College, namely that of President. The first President duly appointed was James Laurence Kauffman, Vice Admiral, U.S. Navy (Ret.), who awarded the degrees to the 150 members of the class.

Gerald J. Marks was an enlisted man who proceeded through Villanova University and Jefferson. Following internship at Jefferson he was on active military duty, after which he returned for completion of his residency in surgery, subsequently joining the staff. Dr. Marks developed a major interest in colorectal surgery which was further stimulated by the development of fiberoptic endoscopy. He became the founding President of the Society of American Gastrointestinal Endoscopic Surgeons, and advanced to Professor of Surgery and Director of the new Division of Colorectal Surgery at Jefferson in 1984 (Fig. 331). He also headed the Colorectal Section at Pennsylvania Hospital. His innovative treatment of lower rectal carcinoma with preoperative radiation and sphincter conservation constituted a major advance.

Carl Zenz became a leader in occupational medicine. He earned a Doctor of Science degree at the University of Cincinnati in 1956 and became Director of Medical Services of Allis-Chalmers Corporation. He was Editor of the Journal of Occupational Health and Safety, author of two books and Clinical Professor at the Medical College of Wisconsin. He was also President of the American Academy of Occupational Medicine and in 1977 was elected Alumni Trustee of Thomas Jefferson University. He later served as a consultant in Occupational Medicine in various industries as well as for the State of Wisconsin Division of Health (Fig. 332).

W. Bernard Kinlaw, trained in internal medicine and cardiology, served as Assistant Professor of Preventive Medicine at Jefferson prior to his appointment as Chairman of the Department of Medicine and Co-Chief of Cardiology at Abington Memorial Hospital. The latter position led to his association with Temple University School of Medicine as Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine.

Harold Rovner joined the staff of the Jefferson Department of Surgery following his internship at Mt. Sinai Hospital. He specialized in proctology and advanced in rank to Assistant Professor of Surgery.

Richard A. Ellis, trained in ophthalmology, became associated with Wills Eye Hospital and in 1983 was promoted to Clinical Professor at Jefferson. He has been one of the "Flying Doctors", providing medical care to Third World Countries.

A number of class members were academically oriented. A partial list included Stewart W. Hamburger, Clinical Professor of Surgery at the School of Medicine of the University of Michigan; Edward J. Saltzman, Clinical Professor of Pediatrics at the University of Miami (Florida) School of Medicine; Scott J. Boley, Professor of Surgery at Einstein College of Medicine, New York; Gerald M. Shannon, Attending Surgeon and Director of Oculoplastic Service at Wills Eye Hospital and Professor of Ophthalmology at Jefferson; George A. Winich, Clinical Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the School of Medicine, University of California, San Francisco; Peter L. Eichmann, Professor of Neurology and former Dean at the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine; and Erwin R. Smarr, Professor of Psychiatry, Medical Center of Central Georgia, Macon.

The year 1950 ushered in a decade of dynamic change. Dean William Harvey Perkins resigned for reasons of health and was succeeded by Dr. George Allen Bennett. The Honorable Alfred E. Driscoll, Governor of New Jersey, addressed the 153 graduates at Commencement on June 9.

Richard Lee Rovit, winner of the prize in Clinical Surgery, pursued a career in neurosurgery with postgraduate experience in Boston, London, and Montreal. He was appointed Associate Professor of Surgery (Neurosurgery) at Jefferson in 1961 and headed the Division of Neurosurgery. Dr. Rovit left Jefferson in 1965 to become Chairman of the Department of Neurosurgery at New York's St Vincent's Hospital and Professor of Clinical Neurosurgery at New York University School of Medicine (Fig. 333).

Hal E. Snedden, following his Jefferson internship, received training in orthopaedic surgery under Jefferson's new department head, Dr. Anthony F. DePalma (Fig. 250). He later joined the staff of Bryn Mawr Hospital where he advanced to Chief of Orthopaedic Surgery and to Clinical Professor at Jefferson (Fig. 334).

William J. Jacoby, Jr. went on to a career in Naval Medicine. After many experiences, his last naval assignment was as Chairman of Internal Medicine and Director of Education and Research at the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Maryland, with the rank of Rear Admiral. In 1980 he retired and joined the Veterans Administration in Washington D.C. as Director of Medical Services.

Jay W. MacMoran served his internship at Geisinger Memorial Medical Center, Danville, Pennsylvania. His career in radiology evolved at Germantown Hospital where in 1977 he became Chairman of the Department. He was also appointed Clinical Professor of Radiology at Temple University School of Medicine. In addition to his skills in chest x-ray diagnosis he became interested in the ancient problem of leprosy. On two occasions he served as Visiting Professor of Radiology at Christian Medical College, Vellore, South India. His studies of leprosy in Nepal, India, and Pakistan from the radiological aspect have continued including publication of papers on the subject. He has also been consultant to the United States Public Health Service Hospital, Carville, Louisiana.

James R. Hodge became prominent in the field of psychiatry with many national relationships. In 1981 he was appointed Chairman of Psychiatry at Akron (Ohio) City Hospital and Professor of Psychiatry at Northeastern Ohio Universities College of Medicine.

Irwin N. Perr, winner of the Alumni Prize, was outstanding in psychiatric circles in New Jersey.

Fig. 333. Richard L. Rovit (JMC, '50), headed the Division of Neurosurgery at Jefferson (1961-65).

He was Professor of Psychiatry at Robert Wood Johnson Medical School and in 1987 received the Golden Merit Award of the New Jersey Psychiatry Association.

Herbert A. Yantes, following Frankford Hospital internship, returned to Jefferson as a resident in medicine and Rehfuess Fellow in Gastroenterology. He was appointed to the teaching staff and advanced to Clinical Assistant Professor of Medicine.

Numerous class members were involved in academic pursuits. Frank R. Hendrickson in 1977 was President of the Department of Therapeutic Radiology at Rush-Presbyterian- St. Luke's Hospital, Chicago, and Director of the Rush Medical College Cancer Center. Murray A. Kessler was Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine at Hahnemann Medical College. Martin Goldberg was Director of the Marriage Council of Philadelphia and Head of the Division of Family Study at the University of Pennsylvania. William B. McNamee was Clinical Assistant Professor of Orthopaedic Surgery at Jefferson and in 1979 was made Medical Director of the Greater Delaware Health Plan. Erich A. Everts-Suarez, winner of the Saunders Prize, became Adjunct Clinical Associate Professor of Pathology and Cell Biology at Jefferson. Maurice R. Turcotte was Assistant Professor of Anesthesiology, Emory University School of Medicine.

Dr. J.O. Crider in physiology laboratory.

Changes in medicine continued apace during the early 1950s. Post-war discoveries included new antibiotics, corticosteroid preparations and technological advances. Numerous 1951 graduates would participate actively in the progress of this decade.

Milton S. Eisenhower, President of Pennsylvania State College and brother of General Dwight D. Eisenhower, addressed the 161 graduates assembled in the Academy of Music.

Francis J. Sweeney, Jr. ( Fig. 335) achieved an important place in Jefferson's growth. From intern, resident, and fellow, he proceeded to major teaching and clinical responsibilities for the Department of Medicine at Jefferson and at Philadelphia General Hospital. In 1968 he was appointed Hospital Director at Jefferson and in 1972 Vice President for Health Services. He served until his resignation in 1984 to become Vice President for the Health Services Center at Temple University. Dr. Sweeney was prominent in the affairs of the American College of Physicians for many years, serving as Chairman of its Board of Regents and as its Governor for Pennsylvania. He was elected a Master of the latter organization and the recipient of its Stengel Award. His portrait was presented to Jefferson in 1978. Other Jefferson honors bestowed upon him were the Alumni Achievement award in 1983 and the Winged Ox Award in 1984.

Herbert C. Mansmann, Jr. pursued a career in pediatrics and allergy, beginning with internship and residency in Pittsburgh, then a fellowship at Massachusetts General Hospital. He returned to Jefferson in 1968 as Professor of Pediatrics and Director of its Division of Allergy and Immunology, and as Associate Professor of Medicine. An authority on childhood asthma, he has been active in national societies and editor of the journal Pediatric Asthma, Allergy and Immunology (Fig. 336).

Peter Chodoff pursued a varied career. In addition to his basic appointment as Professor of Anesthesiology at Jefferson, he went on to a Master of Public Health degree from Johns Hopkins University in 1979 and became Director of Education and Research Medicine at the Medical Center of Delaware. In 1987 he was appointed Assistant Dean at Jefferson.

Irwin L. Stoloff, following Jefferson internship and residency, joined the staff in Medicine and advanced to Associate Professor. He also became Director of the Health Maintenance Clinic and Assistant Professor of Preventive Medicine in 1965 and served until the Department was absorbed into the Department of Medicine in 1979.

Victor F. Greco after residency training at Jefferson, became a power in Northeastern Pennsylvania, beginning as a general and thoracic surgeon. He was a founding member of the Pennsylvania Society of Thoracic Surgeons and became Chief of Surgery at Hazleton State Hospital and at St. Joseph's Hospital. He was Chairman of the Board of the White Haven Center for some years and in 1986 was named Deputy Secretary for Community Health for the State of Pennsylvania by Governor Robert Casey. He also served on the Advisory Committee of the National Institutes of Health (Fig. 337).

Leonard Girsh served a Jefferson internship following which he was trained in allergy. He was later affiliated with the teaching staff at Temple University Hospital and still later became Director of Allergy and Clinical Immunology at the Medical College of Pennsylvania. In 1980 he was elected to the Board of Regents of the American College of Allergists.

Jasper G. Chen-See, following residency in pathology, joined the teaching staff at Jefferson. He later moved to Reading, Pennsylvania where he was Chief Pathologist at St. Joseph's Hospital. In 1979 he was appointed Vice-Chairman of the Board of Directors of the National Council on Alcoholism.

Bernard W. Mayer pursued training in anesthesiology and was Director of Anesthesia at St. Christopher's Hospital for Children. In 1981 he was appointed Professor of Anesthesiology at the Medical College of Pennsylvania. He published a textbook, A Clinical Guide to Pediatric Anesthesia.

Other 1951 graduates who were academically connected included Howard C. Mofenson, Professor of Clinical Pediatrics, New York State College of Medicine, Stony Brook; Simon C. Brumbaugh, Jr., Assistant Clinical Professor of Family Medicine, University of California at San Diego;

Fig. 337. Victor F. Greco (JMC, '51), a leading general and thoracic surgeon in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

Vincent J. McPeak, Clinical Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Jefferson; Harry H. Steinmeyer, Jr., Clinical Associate Professor of Radiology, also at Jefferson; James C. McLaughlin, Clinical Assistant Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Bowman-Gray School of Medicine, Wake Forest University and Chairman of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Winston-Salem Health Care Facility; Arthur H. Auerbach, Assistant Professor of Psychiatry, University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine; Daniel T. Berney, Assistant Professor of Anesthesiology, Los Angeles County, U.S.C. Medical Center; David M. Carberry, Associate Professor of Surgery, Presbyterian Hospital, New York; and Calbert T. Seebert, Assistant Professor of Anesthesiology at Johns Hopkins.

Dean B. Olewiler served as a missionary physician to Nigeria for fourteen years.

For the things we have to learn before we can do them, we learn by doing them.

Aristotle (384–322 B.C.)

On June 12, the M.D. degree was awarded in the Academy of Music by President of the College, James L. Kauffman, to 160 graduates. This brought the grand total in the College history to 18,590.

Gonzalo Enrique Aponte, a native of Puerto Rico, won many of the prizes at graduation, and pursued a brilliant career in pathology at Jefferson (Fig. 338). After residency and duty in the U.S. Navy he returned as a full-time teacher and researcher. He was the first Jeffersonian to receive the prestigious Markle Scholarship in Medical Science (1960-65). In 1967 he succeeded Peter A. Herbut as Chairman of the Department of Pathology and Director of the Clinical Laboratories. Winner of the Lindback Award for distinguished teaching, he was also consistently chosen to administer the Hippocratic Oath to each year's graduating class. His portrait was commissioned by the Class of 1971 when he was only 41 years of age, the youngest Professor ever so honored. In 1967 he was named Clinical Scientist of the Year by the Association of Clinical Scientists and in 1977 he served as President of the Alumni Association. Tragically, Aponte died suddenly in 1979 at age 49, shortly after having been named the first Peter A. Herbut Professor of Pathology. His memory was honored by creation of the Gonzalo Enrique Aponte endowed Professorship of Pathology of which Warren Reichert Lang (JMC, '43, Fig. 293) was the first incumbent.

Jerome Marvin Cotler finished his residency in orthopaedics at Jefferson in 1957 and conducted a highly successful practice in New Jersey. In 1973 he became a fulltime member of the orthopaedic faculty in which he rose to Professorship and Vice-Chairman of the Department. In 1979 he became a Co-Director of the Regional Spinal Cord Injury Center at Jefferson in which he was responsible for the orthopaedic aspects of the patient care program. He served as Chairman of the Board of Councilors of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons in 1975 and as President of the American Board of Orthopaedic Surgery in 1982. He contributed frequently to the literature in orthopaedics and received the Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching (Fig. 339).

Warren Pearlman Goldburgh became an outstanding clinician and teacher in cardiology at Jefferson in which he rose in rank to Clinical Professor (Fig. 340). He served as Director of the Cardiac Outpatient Clinic from 1965 until its closing in 1975. A recipient of the Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching, he also served as President of the Medical Staff and of the Volunteer Faculty Association. In 1987 his portrait was presented to the University by colleagues and friends.

James Edward Clark became a pioneer in nephrology and started hemodialysis at Jefferson in 1959 after he had trained with Dr. Lewis W. Bluemle at the University of Pennsylvania. He continued as the major renal clinician and researcher in dialysis until he left in 1968 to become the Chief of Medicine at Crozer-Chester Hospital. This led to his appointment as Professor of Medicine and Associate Dean at Hahnemann University. He served as President of the Alumni Association 1990/1991 (Fig. 341).

Other members of this class who joined the teaching staff at Jefferson were: Jose Heraclio Amadeo (Surgery, later Chief of Surgery in Veterans Hospital in Puerto Rico, also Governor of the American College of Surgeons for Puerto Rico); Robert Thomas Carroll (Hematology, and Director of Jefferson Hospital's Blood Bank); George Francis Gowen (Surgery, with special interest in gastroscopy); Wesley W. Bare (Obstetrics/Gynecology), Associate Professor; and Elmer J. Taylor, Jr., Clinical Associate Professor of Family Medicine and Clinical Assistant Professor of Medicine.

Joseph Hodge became a prominent surgeon in his native Spartanburg, South Carolina, and carried on research that led to the development of an improved tube for decompression of the bowel in cases of intestinal obstruction. Along with John E. Healey (JMC, '48) he published the textbook, Surgical Anatomy.

Other members of this class who became academically associated were: Albert H. Wilkinson, Jr., Clinical Professor of Pediatric Surgery at the Professor Louis H. Clerf (JMC, '12) performs bronchoscopy.

The M.D. degrees were conferred by President James L. Kauffman on June 12 in the Academy of Music upon 160 graduates. Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, John S. Fine, LL.B., LL.D., L.H.D., gave the Address.

On May 6 of this year, the first successful open heart surgery was performed by John H. Gibbon, Jr., (JMC, '27, Fig. 242)) at Jefferson. This dramatic event marked the culmination of more than twenty years of his research in the development of the heart-lung machine and inaugurated the era of definitive surgical correction of congenital and acquired cardiac defects (Fig. 342).

Franz Goldstein won top honors for highest average as well as other prizes. After completing training in gastroenterology at the Graduate Hospital under the prestigious Henry L. Bockus (JMC, '17, Fig. 202) he was appointed at Jefferson as the first fulltime member of the Division of Gastroenterology. He conducted significant research in his field and succeeded in collaboration with Dr. Charles W. Wirts, (JMC, '34, Fig. 265) in obtaining the first National Institutes of Health gastrointestinal research and training grant at Jefferson. This permitted the establishment of offices, research laboratories and stipends for the trainees. His many scientific contributions led to his rank of Professor of Medicine in 1970. At that time he transferred his activities to Lankenau Hospital where he became Chief of the newly created Department of Gastroenterology and developed a training program. He served as President of the American College of Gastroenterology in 1981/82 (Fig. 343).

Russell William Schaedler, an Alpha Omega Alpha honor student, went on to a distinguished career in microbiology. After an internship at Jefferson he received an appointment to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research where he advanced to Physician to its Hospital in 1962. He became well known in the field of gastrointestinal microecology in which he developed a culture medium that carries his name and is widely used for isolation and identification of anaerobes. Appointed Chairman of Microbiology at Jefferson in 1968, he became the first Plimpton-Pugh Professor in 1985 (Fig. 344). His portrait was presented to the University in 1990.

Jay A. Nadel pursued a career in clinical and research pulmonary medicine. His accomplishments included the presidency of the American Thoracic Society (1973/74) and publication of a textbook of respiratory medicine. He became Chief of the Section of Pulmonary Diseases and Professor of Medicine, Physiology and Radiology as well as Director of the Multidisciplinary Research Training Program on Pulmonary Diseases at the University of California, San Francisco (Fig. 345).

James M. Hunter completed his orthopaedic residency under Anthony F. DePalma at Jefferson and took a fellowship in hand surgery at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York. On returning to Jefferson he became the first Philadelphia orthopaedic surgeon to practice totally in surgery of the hand. His research led to development of the "Hunter tendon" in 1965, the first successful artificial tendon for use in reconstructing severely damaged hands. He became recognized internationally and co-authored Rehabilitation of the Hand in 1978. He established the Hand Rehabilitation Center which became the Division of Hand Surgery of the Department of Orthopaedics and he advanced to the rank of Professor (Fig. 346). His portrait was presented to Jefferson in 1990.

William Eugene Delaney, III, another honor student, went on to become Professor of Medicine and Associate Professor of Pathology at Jefferson. He became highly respected as a clinician, teacher, general pathologist, and medical oncologist (Fig. 347).

Vernon Watson Pugh became a successful pediatrician in his native Raleigh, North Carolina. In 1985, he and Mrs. Frances Plimpton-Pugh esfereson in which his classmate, Dr. Russell W. Schaedler, became the first incumbent.

Henry A. Kane specialized in pediatric cardiology and was a respected teacher at Jefferson.

Robert Poole, III, remained active in the affairs of the Alumni Association and served as its President in 1987. He became a model for family practice in his community (Fig. 348).

John Milton Levinson, of New Jersey, took an American Cancer Society Clinical Fellowship in gynecology at Jefferson and rose in the Faculty to Associate Professor in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology. Between 1961 and 1980 he made eleven trips as a consultant, practicing physician, ship's surgeon and visiting professor to Africa, Antarctica, Europe, People's Republic of China, Southeast Asia and St. Lucia. Also, on the international level, he was the President and Founder of Aid for International Medicine, Inc., a charitable organization registered with the Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid in the U.S. Department of State. He has contributed many scientific articles and served prominently in civic and governmental agencies.

Other class members in academic pursuits included Gerhard H. Fromm, Professor of Neurology, Presbyterian- University Hospital, Pittsburgh; John H. Harris, Jr., Professor of Radiology, Memorial Medical Center, Houston, Texas; Richard W. Hill, Associate Professor of Internal Medicine, Mayo Graduate School of Medicine, Rochester; and Lindsay L. Pratt, Professor of Otolaryngology at Jefferson and from 1975 to 1977 Chairman of the Department (Fig. 349).

Surgical Clinic of Professor Thomas A. Shallow (JMC, '11).

The construction of a new hospital building on Eleventh Street between Walnut and Sansom, later (1962) to be designated the "Foerderer Pavilion," was the major event of the year (Fig. 350). It won a prize for the architect, Mr. Vincent Kling, but rapidly changing needs would require frequent modifications and renovations.

The 163 graduates were awarded their degrees at the Academy of Music on June 18. Thomas B. McCabe, a prominent industrialist, gave the Commencement Address.

Howard L. Field went from his Jefferson internship to training in psychiatry and progressed in that Department at Jefferson to a major role. For a number of years he was Director of Resident Training and Director of the In-Patient Unit, as well as Medical Director of Friends Hospital. He was later Director of the Division of Consultation and Liaison and of Psychosomatic Medicine with the rank of Clinical Professor of Psychiatry and Human Behavior (Fig. 351).

Rudolph C. Camishion was trained in surgery at Jefferson and held an appointment as National Cancer Institute Fellow until 1962. He later advanced to Professor of Surgery (Fig. 352). In 1978 he was appointed Professor of Surgery and Head of the Department of Surgery at Rutgers Medical School, Camden. In 1990 he served as President of the Philadelphia Academy of Surgery.

John W. Goldschmidt was attracted to Rehabilitation Medicine. Following training at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania he returned to Jefferson in 1959 and soon became Director of Rehabilitation Medicine. He had major responsibility for developing the new Rehabilitation Unit in the Thompson Building. In 1961 he received the Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching. He became the first Dean of Allied Health Sciences in 1967 (Fig. 353) but returned to Rehabilitation Medicine with his appointment to Northwestern University School of Medicine, Chicago, in 1971. In 1983 he became

Vice-President and Medical Director of the National Rehabilitation Hospital, Washington, D.C.

John R. Patterson, winner of the Practice Prize in Medicine, served his residency at Jefferson. Following training in rheumatology, he joined the Department of Medicine where he became a leading member of the Division of Rheumatology and advanced to Clinical Associate Professor of Medicine. He also served a term as President of the Philadelphia Rheumatism Society (Fig. 354).

John J. Kelly served his internship, residency and Fellowship in Cardiology at Jefferson and then joined the staff of Lankenau Hospital where he progressed to Chief of Medicine and Co-Director of Cardiology. Since 1979 he has been Clinical Professor of Medicine through the Lankenau-Jefferson affiliation.

Warren W. Nichols in 1980 was the winner of the Jefferson Alumni Achievement Award. He served as Senior Director, Genetic and Cellular Toxicology for Merck, Sharp and Dohme Laboratories. He was also Professor of Pediatrics and Human Genetics at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine.

Numerous members of the Class of 1954 were prominent in their special fields. Charles H.

Fig. 352. Rudolph C. Camishion (JMC, '54), Professor of Surgery.

Greenbaum, trained in dermatology at the University of Pennsylvania and the Philadelphia General Hospital, went on to the rank of Clinical Professor of Dermatology at Jefferson. Thomas Aceto, Jr. became Professor and Chairman of the Department of Pediatrics and Adolescent Medicine at St. Louis University School of Medicine. Edward M. Podgorski joined the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Jefferson and advanced to Clinical Assistant Professor. John J. Blizzard became prominent in the Department of Medicine at the Lankenau Hospital and advanced to Clinical Professor of Medicine at Jefferson. Philip Woolcott, Jr., trained in psychiatry at the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kansas, was Psychiatrist-in-Chief and Professor at the University of Illinois Medical Center. Martin D. Shickman was Assistant Dean for Post-Graduate Medical Education and Clinical Professor in the Department of Medicine and Cardiology at the University of Los Angeles School of Medicine. Paul Griesmer, major prize winner at graduation, became Chief of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Wilkes-Barre General Hospital and at Nesbitt Memorial Hospital, Kingston, Pennsylvania. Howard E. Sullivan, Jr. was Chief of Allergy at Bryn Mawr Hospital and Associate Professor of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine. Joseph B. Green in 1982 was named Chairman of the Department of Psychiatry and Neurology at Tulane University School of Medicine. Stanley R. Kern in 1980 was President of the New Jersey Psychoanalytic Society and in 1987 President of the New Jersey Psychiatric Association. Jack W. Fink, very active in Alumni affairs, became Clinical Assistant Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Jefferson. Robert B. Cahan, trained in psychiatry in the Philadelphia area, became Associate Clinical Professor of Psychiatry at the University of California at San Francisco. Alfred P. Spivak was trained in cardiology and advanced to Clinical Professor at Stanford University School of Medicine. Thornton A. Vandersall, prior to retirement in 1988, was Professor of Clinical Psychiatry at Cornell University School of Medicine. Lewis P.

Scott was Professor of Pediatrics at George Washington School of Medicine, Washington, D.C. Murray N. Silverstein was Professor of Internal Medicine at Mayo Graduate School, Rochester. George D. Sorenson served as Professor of Pathology at Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center, Hanover. Andrew J. Zweifler was Professor of Internal Medicine at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Charles J. Beauchamp was Associate Professor of Pediatrics, University of California, Davis, and G. Richard Dickersin, Associate Professor of Pathology, Massachusetts General Hospital.

Where there is much desire to learn, there of necessity will be much arguing, much writing, many opinions, for opinion in good men is but knowledge in the making.

John Milton (1608–76)

The Commencement Address for the 169 graduates of 1955 was delivered by Norman Vincent Peale, D.D., then at the height of his popularity. Dr. Peale was Minister of the Marble Collegiate Church, New York.

Herbert E. Cohn was the major awards recipient. Among these he received the Alumni, Potter Memorial, and Einstein prizes for the highest academic performance. He was trained in surgery at Jefferson and joined the surgical staff with an interest in organ transplantation. He performed the first successful renal transplant at Jefferson in 1972. Dr. Cohn went on to academic and clinical accomplishments resulting in his ultimate promotion to Professor of Surgery and Vice-Chairman of the Department (Fig. 355). He also received the Lindback Award for teaching excellence and in 1984 was President of the Medical Staff. In 1988 he was honored by the Jewish National Fund as Man of the Year. His portrait was presented to the University in 1990.

Leon A. Peris, also a prize winner, became an important member of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Jefferson. When Dr. Laird Jackson organized the Division of Medical Genetics, Dr. Peris represented the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology in investigation and clinical genetic counseling. He advanced to Clinical Associate Professor and in 1987 was elected President of the Medical Staff (Fig. 356). Following his early death, the Leon A. Peris Memorial Award was established in 1988 for that member of the Volunteer Faculty showing excellence in clinical teaching and superior patient care.

Edward C. Bradley, S.J. was trained in internal medicine and cardiology and joined the staff of the Department of Medicine. He later became a priest of the Society of Jesus but continued his clinical teaching and advanced to Clinical Associate Professor. In 1988 he was appointed to the post of Special Counselor in Residence, available for student consultation (Fig. 357).

F. William Sunderman, Jr., also a winner of five prizes at graduation, became a clinical pathologist of note. An officer of the Association of Clinical Scientists, he has been Professor of Laboratory Medicine and Pharmacology at the University of Connecticut School of Medicine.

Rachmel Cherner, following internship at Graduate Hospital, joined the Department of Medicine at Jefferson and advanced to Clinical Associate Professor. His major interest was endocrinology and diseases of metabolism.

H. William Porterfield entered the expanding field of plastic surgery and served as an officer of several associations including the Presidency of the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons in 1981. He was Associate Clinical Professor of Surgery at Ohio State University School of Medicine.

Richard H. Schwartz, after internship at Philadelphia General Hospital, was trained in obstetrics and gynecology. He went on to appointment as Professor and Chairman of the Department at State University of New York Downstate Medical Center and also Dean of the College of Medicine and Vice President for Medical Affairs at the same institution. In 1989 he was Vice President of the American College of Obstetrics/Gynecology.

Robert I. Fraser entered the field of public health after his Pennsylvania Hospital internship. He was involved in the study and control of tuberculosis in Alaska. From 1969 he served as Chief of Communicable Disease Control and was later named Director of the Division of Public Health for the State of Alaska.

Thomas W. Georges, Jr. was trained in Public Health (M.P.H) and became an administrator in the Philadelphia Health Department. He served a term as Commissioner of Health for the State of Pennsylvania, was Professor of Public Health at Temple University School of Medicine, and later Professor of Preventive Medicine at Howard University School of Medicine.

A number of 1955 graduates were notable in various careers. Robert J. Senior was a charter member of the Society for Adolescent Medicine and in 1981 was a member of the Editorial Board of the Journal of Current Adolescent Medicine. Guy L. Schless, trained at the Pennsylvania Hospital and in London in endocrinology and metabolic diseases, was Assistant Clinical Professor of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine. Robert E. Berry, after a tour of duty in Nepal where he performed the first thoracic surgery in that country's history, practiced in Roanoke, Virginia, and held an appointment as Professor of Surgery at the University of Virginia. Arthur C. Huntley was Associate Clinical and Research Professor at the Medical College of Pennsylvania and Coordinator of Group Psychotherapy Training at Eastern Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute. Frederick Lytel was a Clinical Assistant Professor of Family Medicine in Jefferson's preceptor program. William D. Millhon was Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine at Ohio State University College of Medicine. Harry G. Light, a surgeon in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, was a Governor of the American College of Surgeons. Bernard W. Godwin was Clinical Assistant Professor of Medicine at Jefferson in the Division of Allergy and Immunology. Thomas N. Gates, after experience in private practice, became associated with pharmaceutical medical research. He progressed to Director of Clinical Renal Research at Merck, Sharp and Dohme Laboratories and later was appointed Vice President of the Medical Department of McNeil Laboratories and a member of the Management Board. Leonard J. Graziani served at Jefferson as Professor of Pediatrics, Director of Child Development, and Professor of Neurology (Fig. 358). Richard E. Hicks was Associate Professor of Psychiatry and Joseph A. Miller Professor of Obstetrics/Gynecology at Hahnemann University.

North Lecture Room in College Building.

The M.D. degrees were conferred on June 15 in the Academy of Music by President Kauffman on 171 graduates, which brought the total number to 19,255. The Address was delivered by Frank Brown Berry, M.D., Assistant Secretary of Defense.

Benjamin Bacharach, of New Jersey, devoted his career to surgery and to administration at Jefferson. During his surgical residency he worked in the research laboratory under the auspices of Professor John H. Gibbon, Jr. From 1962 to 1965 he operated on cases of complicated tuberculosis and continued his research in cardiopulmonary problems. He served as President of the Alumni Association in 1981. In 1987 he became a Clinical Professor of Surgery and also the Associate Dean for Admissions of Jefferson Medical College. The following year he was appointed Vice Chairman of the Department of Surgery. As a fund raiser for Jefferson for many years he has acted as leader for the President's Club contributors and was the first to be awarded the Gold-Headed Cane of that organization (Fig. 359).

Sheldon Gerald Gilgore took residency training at Jefferson in endocrine and metabolic diseases in which he conducted important research in carbohydrate metabolism. He went on to become President of Pfizer Pharmaceuticals and then Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of G.D. Searle and Company. He served as Chairman of the Board at Clark University and a six-year term as Alumni Representative on the Board of Thomas Jefferson University. In 1988 he was the recipient of Jefferson's prestigious Alumni Achievement Award (Fig. 360).

David Charles Schechter won many of the prizes at graduation. He interned at Jefferson and took his residency training under Professor John H. Gibbon, Jr., with participation in the research laboratory. After a tour of military duty he was the recipient of a Fellowship Award for postgraduate study under Sir Russel Brock at the Institute for Diseases of the Chest at Brompton Hospital in London and with Professor Charles Dubost in Paris at the Hospital Broussais. He then continued his surgical career at the New York Medical College where he became a Clinical Professor of Surgery.

Wallace T. Miller, Professor of Radiology, University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, received numerous awards for excellence in teaching of medical students and residents. In 1989 he was selected as editor of Seminars in Roentgenology.

versity Health Sciences Center, Charleston, became notable as a medical writer and frequent visiting professor.

Leopold Samuel Loewenberg joined Jefferson's Department of Obstetrics/Gynecology and advanced to Clinical Associate Professor. He was President of the Medical Staff in 1990 (Fig. 361).

Edward David McLaughlin augmented his surgical residency at Jefferson with research at the National Cancer Institute. He served for many years as Chief of Surgery at Misericordia Hospital, Philadelphia, in which capacity he trained Jefferson students on rotation (Fig. 362).

Other members of the class who were highly respected on Jefferson's Faculty were George Manuel Arnas and Stewart E. First (both in Obstetrics/Gynecology), and Joel David Hoffman (Orthopaedics).

Class members with academic appointments elsewhere included: William E. Clendenning, Professor of Internal Medicine, Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center, Hanover; Ernest R. Griffith, Professor of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation, University of Illinois; James B. Lee, Professor of Internal Medicine, University of Buffalo; Paul G. McDonough, Professor of Obstetrics/Gynecology, Medical College of Georgia, Augusta; Patrick S. Pasquariello, Associate Professor of Pediatrics at the University of Pennsylvania; Kenneth N. Beers, Associate Professor of Internal Medicine, and Charles J. Stahl, III, Associate Professor of Pathology, both at Wright State University, Dayton, Ohio.
